U. S. DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE REVIEW PLANS

Americans Rank as Ambassadors at Limitation of Armament Conference

LOOK FOR SAVINGS

Senator Swanson Advocates Freedom of Seas to All Nations.—To Cut Navies is Plan

American delegates to the conference on limitation of armaments met again yesterday with representatives of the Navy Department to perfect the plans for reduction of naval armaments which will be submitted for consideration of the powers when the conference reaches this mportant subject, first on the agenda for consideration.

Before they entered yesterday's discussion the American delegates received their signed commissons from the President designatng them as Ambassadors of the United States with plenipotentiary powers. This will give them rank with the delegates of the visting powers and full authority to act for the President in the conference.

Meeting with the delegation yesterday were Secretary of the Navy Denby, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, Rear Admiral Coontz, chief of naval operations, and Capt. Pratt. Secretary Hughes, chairman of the delegation, announced that progress was being made on the plans of the delgation for naval reduction but that nothing could be said about that at this time. The delegation will meet again this afternoon and again tomorrow morning.

With delegates and advisers arriving daily and discussion of the conference being indulged in at the Capitol and in voluntary advisory organizations, the subject is already uppermost in Washington. In an address last night before an advisory convocation on limitation of armaments Senator Willis, of Ohio, declared that "total disarmament by civilized nations is at the present moment as impossble as it would be dangerous."

RAIN SPOILS FUN

Hallowe'en Festivities Last But An Hour When Skies Weep

Rain spoiled the street celebration of the youngsters last night in observance of Hallowe'en. The younger population had about an hour's fun when the skies began to weep and soon the streets were cleared of the revelers.

Perhaps the largest number ever before seen on the streets were out in full force last night and were it not for the rain the celebration promised to surpass anything of the kind ever before attempted.

The costumes worn were new and novel in many instances and attracted considerable attention. King street was thronged with people.

There was everything in the line of fantastic costumes one would want to see from Charley Chaplin to Santa Claus. There was a country jazz band on the scene which attracted considerable attention.

Many private parties and masqued dances were held during the evening and the little ons finished their celebration at hom.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Wash, Nov. 1.—That the Democrats will carry Virginia on Election Day by from 50,000 to 75,000 plurality is the declaration of E. Lee Trinkle the Democratic Gubernatorial candidate who was in Washington for a few hours on Monday conferring with some of his friends at the National Capital.

"There is not the slightest doubt that I will be elected by overwhelming vote," said Mr. Trinkle to the Gazette correspondent. "I confidently expect at least 50,000 majority and the grand total may run up as high as 75,000. From the latest reports I have received from my managers in every section of the state, it is perfectly safe to make this prediction. Democrats in the Old Dominion are united now as they never were before and are all working with might and main to insure an overwhelming victory on election day."

The Democratic candidate spoke to a large and enthusiastic audience at Culpepper last night and will be busy on the stump from now until election day.

"I believe the people of San Francisco will be wonderfully interested and inspired when they hear the President of the United States delivering the eulogy over the body of the unknown American dead to be buried in the Arlington Ampitheatre on Armistice Day," says a message of Representative Kahn to the Mayor of San Francisco. Mr. Kahn visited Arlington on Saturday last and heard the telephonic amplifier at work.

The President's funeral oration will be heard by thousands in the grounds around the ampitheatre, thousands in New York, thousands in San Francisco. By the use of this voice amplifier the time is fast approaching when practically every large city in this country will be connected by wire to these telephoneic amplifiers so that one and the same time, perhaps half the population of the United States can be listening to the words of their chief executive as he addresses all America on the important questions that are before our people.

In spite of persistent rumors that the Shipping Board is to be turned over to the Department of Commerce, leaders of the House apparently have no intention of pressing the bill recently introduced by Representative Sweet, of Iowa for that purpose. While some members of the House and Senate are still grumbling over conditions at the Board the general attitude seems to be that the new Board must be given opportunity to wrestle with its problems awhile longer before opinion is passed upon its accomplishments or failures. The members of the Board are now at work upon a statement showing the financial condition of the Organization as well as a report on the number of claims against the Board which information has been asked by Congress.

Real relief from the nation-wide housing shortage, which has been called the country's highest barrier against economic stability now is beginning to appear. High rents within a few months should be a matter only of history.

According to an official statement of Secretary of Commerce Hoover more than 53,000 residences and apartments, were contracted for between Jan. 1 and Oct. 1, in twenty-seven states in the north and eastern sections of the United States. September contracts were numerically greater than any September in history, the statement showed. The beginning of a nation-wide boom in the construction of buildings of all kinds now in seen by government officials. This means an end of the nation-wide housing shortage in houses unless some unforseen barrier raises itself.

The condition of former President Woodrow Wilson, who suffered a slight setback during the past week due to a case of indigestion is not such as to cause his friends any alarm, according to Dr. Grayson, his physician. Dr. Grayson declared today that his distinguished patient has almost recovered from the attack of indigestion, but upon his advice, Mr. Wilson remained in bed on Sunday, and it was thought best that he should not receive Marshal Foch, who called on Saturday to pay his respects. An attack of indigestion, Dr. Grayson, explains, is nothing unusual for Mr. Wilson. He has been suffering from stomach trouble for years, although the attacks have not been of so frequent occurence within the last year or so. But it is believed by Dr. Grayson that the former occupant of the White House will be able to resume his usual duties and take his automobile rides through the country within a very few days unless a setback takes place. That is why he is keeping Mr. Wilson quite and away from all cares and worries.

HOME FOLKS' COLUMN
By R. S.

As every cloud has its silver lining, so has every gloomy day its fringe of gold. We may be cast into the depths of despair, but the birds still sing and the flowers nod on, all breathing of hope that springs eternal.

A missionary upon returning from a foreign field was asked woman's first question regarding the female natives. The question was, "What did they wear?" To this he replied, "A string of beads, and a smile."

Apropos of the foregoing, it would seem that the same fashion has struck among the civilized peoples. Smiles we have according to the nature and temperament, but beads we must have if we expect to get anywhere in a fashionably dressed community.

Beads are distinctly feminine, and add to a costume that last little touch of something essential to milady's wardrobe. The fashionable shops just now are filled with nifty little hats for fall street wear. They are snug fitting, but would appear much the same if not relieved from commonplaceness by clusters and festoons of beads adorning them. Some of them have loops of beads in oriental design hanging over the ears in imitation of Salome's ear rings. Others have tassels of beads dangling carelessly over the left eye. There are beads of all descriptions adorning these bonnets. Large beads of brilliant jet, small beads of all shapes and sizes in brilliant colorings, and smooth round beads of coral, which lend a refined tone to the black turban of soft velvet. One little hat that appealed to me was a roll brimmed sailor of black velvet faced with cloth of silver. From the side dangled a festoon of silver fringe which seemed to enhance the vivacity of the youthful face beneath it.

Pocahontas in all her glory was never arrayed in the like of beads one sees today in the shops. Whether on bags, dresses, hats, or what not. Powhatan would have traded his interest in half the colonies for a section of one down town window, and while the beaded bags so popular two or three years ago are periodically reported to be passe, they are still holding up.

Another feminine style that bids every few years for extinction, is the mesh purse. It persistently comes back each year in a different shape to conform with the fashions of today, and we welcome it's coming, or rather it's remaining, for no purse imparts that distinctive touch of refinement to the afternoon frock as the dainty mesh bag of dull gold, or burnished silver.

One welcome departure in woman's wear shown in the shops of Washington and Alexandria, are the simple Peter Pan dresses with collars and cuffs of white kid, and soft brown leather. Nothing is quite so sensible for the business girl who is tired of the accepted shirtwaist-and-skirt office attire.

We note that the sport coats for women are being each season patterned more and more after the sensible styles of their big brother's top coats. We recently looked longingly at a number of these in an exclusive shop window. They were featured in the soft colorings of autumn, the greens, and browns and mouse greys and were indeed "sporty." The sleeves were cut in one with the yoke, and from this, draped gracefully in circular effect the warm homespun from which the coats were fashioned. The collar rolled high around the face. If one's wardrobe allowance is limited. it is safer to invest in a substantial weather proof cloth coat, than in an elaborately trimmed cloak.

A mighty pretty thing in its simplicity, the beauty lying principally in the material employed, is a dinner gown of soft black satin crepe. Sleeveless, and with plain round neck, the bodice blouses plainly at the waist. The skirts falls closely to the slender figure and a narrow tunic at the side falls in graceful lines to the dainty slipper heels. A touch of dull gold outlined the otherwise severe edges of the dress.

Just about the last word in snug appearing rigs for winter wear, is the three piece suit which is growing into favor like everything. It consists of a cloth dress cut on the straightest lines, and belted loosely A three quarter circular cape of the same material is worn with it, and the third piece of the costume consists of a detachable collar of fur of some bushy variety, such as raccoon. There is no costume nattier than this for the flapper or girlish matron.

The cutest things we have seen in a suit this fall is a little affair of midnight blue. The skirt is very plain, and short, but not too short. It is long enough to keep the knees warm in cold weather. The jacket is of three quarter length, close fitting and in flat effect across the shoulders and bust, but flares gradually to-

MOVES TO STEM THE PROGRESS OF CANCER

National Cancer Week Being Observed By Local Physicians

TALKS TO BE GIVEN

65,000 Persons Die From Cancer Each Year.—Pointed Out That Many Deaths Are Preventable

Physicians of this city are observing national cancer week with addresses on the subject in order to help stem the tide of the spread of this disease.

The medical society of the city last night was addressed by Dr. M. D. Delaney on the subject and Dr. H. A. Latane yesterday morning made an address on the subject to the life insurance agents of the city.

Dr. Chester A. Amos will make an address at 8 o'clock tonight before the members of the Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. L. E. Foulks, city health officer, will make an address on the subject to the women's clubs of the city some night this week. This will include the Cameron Club, League of Women Voters, Business and Professional Women.

Dr. H. A. Latane spoke on the subject yesterday morning to the life insurance members of the Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Llewellyn Powell will address the parent-teachers' association some day this week and the ministerial association of the city will be addressed on the subject one day this week. The speaker has not yet been announced.

The local officers are Dr. S. B. Moore, district chairman; Dr. Llewellyn Powell, city chairman; Dr. H. A. Latane, secretary.

In a circular issued by the Virginia division of the American Society for the control of cancer it is set forth that each year 85,000 people die from cancer. One out of ten women over thirty-five years of age dies from cancer. It is pointed out that half of these deaths might have been averted if taken in time. Other facts given follow:

During the Great War the United States lost about 80,000 soldiers. During the same two years 180,000 people died of cancer in this country. Cancer is now killing one out of every ten persons over forty years of age.

Many of these deaths are preventable, since cancer is frequently curable, if recognized and properly treated in its early stages.

Cancer begins as a small local growth which can often be entirely removed by competent surgical treatment, or, in certain external forms, by using radium, X-ray or other methods.

Cancer is not a constitutional or "blood" disease; there should be no thought of disgrace or of "hereditary taint" about it.

Cancer is not a communicable disease. It is not possible to "catch" cancer from one who has it.

LITTLE STORIES OF THE STREET
By The Man About Town

Staurday night I joined the crowd
Gatnered around the gas flare
On King Street
To watch a man dressed in tweeds
Sell dinky neck-tie holders
Made of wire
He had a line of gilt-edged guff
Which caught the passers by
And held them
While he told them funny stories
About his mother-in-law
And everything
I wondered what it was all about
But I couldn't tell
From his talk
Until he got down to brass tacks
And began to sell tie-holders
To beat the band
To lots of men who didn't need 'em
And didn't really want'em
But bought 'em
Just the same as if they meant
To use the tin contraptions
On their ties.
"Psychology of the Crowd," they call it
Those guys who dope it out
By rule of thumb.
But I would like to ask that fellow
Just what he did to hypnotize
Those suckers.
I'd like to know just how it's done
For I've five necktie holders
I'd like to sell.

Those epicureans who have fondness for sea food can easily satisfy their inward cravings along that line at this season of the year. A casual glance at the windows of local dealers shows an abundance of mackeral, trout, striped-bass, butterfish, and flounders. Oysters are plentiful and of good flavor. You can get a turtle to compound your soup, and shrimp for a tasty salad. And take it from us a nice fresh mackerel, split down the back, and grilled to a turn isn't the sort of a dish that a red blooded husky turns down.

The duck season opened with a bang and roar all along the Potomac this morning. Gunston Cove, Hunting Creek Piscataway and other nearby shooting points reported ducks in abundance, and although the warm weather prevailing at present is far from ideal from the shooters viewpoint, we anticipate good sport for the early gunners.

Incidently, the bag limit for each hunter per day on water fowl, except wood-duck, eider-duck and swan which are protected indifinately by law is twenty-five ducks and eight geese or brant. Shooting water fowl from power or sail boat or from airplane, or with a gun larger than a ten guage is prohibited. The season closes January 31, 1922.

Violations of State and Federal game laws will be vigorously prosecuted and it behooves every sportsman to lend his assistance to the constituted authorities by reporting any violations which may come to his notice. Only through strict enforcement of such laws will wild life be preserved in our country and we want to see them enforced.

One of the historic landmarks of Alexandria is the Carlyle House, located on North Fairfax Street, just a block from King. Builded on the remains of an old colonial fort in 1752, its massive walls have weathered the ravages of time and weather and it stands today in a remarkable state of preservation, a lasting monument to its builder, John Carlyle, whose remains lie in the burying grounds of the First Presbyterian Church.

The fittings and fixtures are representative of colonial days and every effort has been made to retain the atmosphere of that period. The huge wine cellars, sans the juice of the grape, are cool and damp. The kitchen equipment is of that massive design made famous in England during the days when the Lord of the Manor and all of his dependents gathered around a single board. A curious old tunnel leading to the Potomac smacks of deeds of daring under the moon—kissed skies of ve ancient time. Swords, pistols and other weapons of the period are displayed in glass cases. Pictures of the chivalry of the day adorn the walls.

Here, General Braddock, commander of the British forces in America, assembled the governors of the five Colonies to discuss the advisability of concerted action against threatened invasion from the north by the French and Indian allies. Here the haughty Briton, disdaining George Washington's advice, planned to send his vaunted regulars against the red-skinned foe who haunted the forests, an undertaking which resulted in his death and defeat for British arms. Here also Braddock and the Governors of the colonies decided upon a plan of taxation which twenty-two years later led to open rebellion and subsequent separation of the colonies from the mother country.

George Washington, then a lieutent in the Virginia Milita, opposed the march on the wilderness lying along the Ohio—a country with which he was perfectly familiar—by regular troops advancing in closed formation with flying flags and beating drums. Braddock, the bull-headed failed to

Men Shot Friday Will Recover, It Is Expected

Indications are that Charles and Elmer Ferris, colored, brothers, who were shot last Friday morning in the abdomen will recover.

The shots were fired it is alleged by Walter Johnson, colored. Dr. Llewellyn Powell and Dr. H. A. Latane are attending the men and it was at first thought that their wounds would prove fatal. William Johnson, colored, brother of the men charged with the shooting, who was shot in the leg, is rapidly recovering it is stated.

Hallowe'en Celebrated

Playgrounds Provide Enjoyment For Crowds of Children And Parents

The inclement weather did not in any way interfere with the large crowd that enjoyed the mysteries of Hallowe'en at the Friends Playgrounds in Queen street. The fun started early which made it possible for those attending to take in all before the rain started. There were 350 children, all in costume, present, besides more than 175 parents.

The grounds were beautifully decorated with lighed pumpkins in every nook and corner and even in the tree tops, giving a weird and fascinating effect. All sorts of goodies were there for sale, including hot dog sandwiches, pumpkin pie and cakes and candy.

Much of the success of the entertainment is due the efforts and assistance of Mrs. Newell, Miss Wings, Mr. Crump, Mr. Preston O. Cockey, Alexandria County Lighting Co., and Washington and Ladd.

HALLOWE'EN AT HOME

Last night the festival spirit enveloped Alexandria like a wedding garment while Youth and Beauty had its inning. With a blare of horns and the jangling of bells, the Halloween revelers made merry while the staid and sober citizens of the city smiled and endured the blatant uproar right graciously.

King street was a riot of color from Royal to Washington, filled as it was with happy groups of laughing youngsters garbed in queer and unusual combinations of dazzling hue. Negro minstrels, Kris Kringles,

GIVES CAUSE LEADING TO TYPHOID FEVER

Health Officer Foulks Favors Quarantine For Typhoid Patients

CAN TRACE EPIDEMICS

Urges Anti-Typhoid Inoculation—Is sure Protection For Two Years Says Health Officer.

People often stop me on the street and ask me to, explain, "Just how a person gets typhoid fever." It being a subject of general public interest, the following may throw a little light upon the cause and transmission of this rather serious disease, says Dr. L. E. Foulks, city health officer.

Typhoid fever is a specific germ disease and is caused by the "Bacillus typhosus." This is a small rod-shaped organism, with many delicate hair-like filaments—called flagella—projecting from it. It is by the constant whip-like movements of these flagella, that the germ is enabled to move rapidly about in any fluid matter. We can grow these germs very easily in the laboratory, and by making a hanging drop on a hollow-ground glass slide, we can by use of the high-power microscope, see the bacilli very plainly, rapidly moving about in the minute drop of culture media.

The natural habitation of the typhoid germ is within the human body. They have never been found in any other form of animal life, nor do they spring spontaneously from the dirt or decaying animal or vegetable matter.

Typhoid germs are spread only by the discharges from the human body. In other words, human filth. There is no other way. Of course there are a hundred different ways in which this human filth can reach your mouth, but it must and does get there by one of these ways, otherwise it would be simply impossible for you to contract the disease. For every effect there must be a cause, and the cause of typhoid fever is a well known germ. Some of these germs must get into your mouth, and later when they reach the intestines, they begin to multiply and you soon—that is in from seven to twenty-one days—develop the first symptoms of typhoid. And even then you may mope around for one, two or three weeks before you get so sick you have to go to bed. Now how did you get these germs into your mouth?

As above mentioned, there are many ways. You might have eaten some raw oysters, taken from waters contaminated by sewage, or by drinking infected well or springwater, or water from any source that has been contaminated by human filth. Or by infected milk or way vegetables that had not been thoroughly washed before being eaten, Salads in particular, are dangerous. They are easily infected and are eaten raw. The worst epidemic from infected food on record developed from a Harvest Home Church supper, held in New Jersey, July 27th, last. Resulting in 200 cases, in 116 homes, with 29 deaths. Chicken salad was the cause.

An exactly similar outbreak of typhoid fever—though far less serious—was caused by infected chicken salad served at supper held in Hopewell, Va., on June 28th, 1920. Out of 90 persons attending this supper, 49 developed the disease in from 5 to 28 days only those who partook of the salad were taken sick. An investigation was conducted by the U. S. Public Health Service and the State Board of Health. Laboratory tests demonstrated that mayonnaise dressing used on salads is a good culture media for typhoid germs. They will not only live in it, but actually grow and quickly multiply This dressing is infected by the person mixing, and if it should be kept a few hours before using, the germs would multiply into millions. Then when this was later placed on the salad, the entire batch would be infected. In this outbreak it was shown that one of the ladies who helped mix the dressing, actually had typhoid, for the day after the supper she felt so sick that she took to bed with a typical case of the disease. The New Jersey epidemic was no doubt caused in the same way. Either by a carrier or a person in the early stages of the disease.

In order to insure perfect safety, all foods should be cooked before using. Practically all disease germs are quickly killed by boiling, or ordinary cooking heat. Freezing has no effect on disease germs.

Typhoid fever is a highly infectious and contagious disease. Do not come into direct contact with a typhoid patient, or handle anything she or he has used. Don't kiss or shake hands with a person who has the disease or who is just recovering from it. The living germs are in the saliva, urine and stools of the patient. We often have several cases in a section after the first case has developed. Flies can and do play a very important part

REALTORS AND PROSPERITY

Alexandria was honored recently by having the Executive Committee of the Virginia Realtors in her midst. This body of representative citizens of the Old Dominion transacted business that will be of untold benefit to the state in future. Among other matters of importance they decided to spend $25,000 a year for the next five years in advertising Virginia. This is a move in the right direction and will undoubtedly produce practical results of far reaching effect.

One of the most difficult problems of today is the housing question, and this pertains particularly to that energetic body of our citizens who deal in real estate. It is estimated that the item of housing represents about one-fifth of the cost of living in the cities of the United States. This makes it, of course, by far the most important element in the budget of the citizen: A famine in housing, according to Samuel Untermyer, in a recent brochure published by him, with its accompanying invitation to extortion, profiteering and exploitations, is therefore the greatest deterrent to any effort to secure a reduction in the cost of living. It directly or indirectly inflates every item of daily consumption, since increased rents for places of business must be added to the cost of every article of merchandise that is bought and sold.

The U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics shows some interesting figures along these lines. The index numbers of wholesole prices in lumber and building materials and of commodities in general, from 1917 to 1921 ran as follows: The average index number for the year 1917, of lumber and building materials was 124, while of all other commodities it was 176. For the year 1918 the index numbers were 151 and 196, respectively. For 1919 they were 192 and 212. For 1920 they were 263 and 248. For 1921, they were 239 and 177 in January, and 198 and 152 in August. Thes increases were of course enormous, and far greater than the corresponding increases in labor.

This is one factor which belongs to the Realtors of the whole country to consider and to overcome. We are confident, however, that our Virginia Realtors are already at work on the problem, and that especially here in Alexandria they will arrive at some satisfactory and competent solution. We need more houses in this city, many more; and among them big modern hotels that will attract conventions from all over the country andt take care of an overflow from the capital that would require no other inducement to fill Alexandria full to overflowing all the year.

APES

(For the Gazette)

The term ape is applied loosely as a synomym for monkey but in the more restricted sense applies only to the anthrropoid apes, the highest section of quadrumana or four handed mammals.

Apes, in general, appear to be more grave and less petulant and mischievous than monkeys.

The group of apes includes the gibbons, orang-outangs, chimpanzees and gorillas.

Apes are all devoid of tails and cheek pouches.

The ape approches nearer in anatomical structure to the human species than any other animal.

Chimpanzee is the native Guinea name of a large ape of equatorial Africa.

The gorilla, the largest and fiercest of anthropoid apes, most resembles man in structure and size.

45,000 Miles In One World Series Telegsaph Circuit

Enough to reach Fifteen Times from New York to San Francisco, or Nearly Twice Around the World.

To satisfy the demands of fans in every quarter of the United States and Canada who could not be reached quickly enough by the press and who could not crowd in at the newspaper bulletin boards during the world series just ended, the Western Union Company, in addition to providing telegraph circuits for all the press associations and for scores of individual newspapers was obliged to set up a circuit containing over 45,000 miles of wire.

The company chose its most expert baseball reporter to munipulate the "master key" at the Polo Grounds. This key flashed the signals through a mass of multiple "repeaters" which connected up all the large centers on the North American continent, and from each of these centers a further net-work of wires was set up to supply city and hamlet in the immediate neighborhood with a full and detailed description of every ball pitched, every decision of the umpires and every movement of the players. Hundreds of thousands of fans seated in theatres, armories, open-air coliseums and other temporary meeting grounds often knew that the ball just pitched was a called strike before many of those at the Polo Grounds could catch sight of the signal on the great score-board behind left field to which they had to refer when they missed the gesture of the umpire himself; for the "master key" knew everything, and translated the intricate mysteries of every game into the language of fandom, and flashed the magic words to the cheering multitudes with the speed of light. The description was sent from sight, no "copy" being supplied to this operator- reporter, who flashed the plays exactly as he saw them before a pencil could have written them down.

An idea of the magnitude of the circuit which furnished the news of every game simultaneously to all the hundreds of cities connected to it, without the intervention of any human agency other than the man at the Polo Grounds and his worthy assistant, may be gathered from the fact that it bounded the country in the form of a vast rectangle, New York to Montreal, Toronto, Detroit, Chicago, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Phoenix, Albuquerque, San Antonio, New Orleans, Jacksonville, Savannah, Wilmington and Norfolk, back to New York via Boston, and that between these fringes of the electrical spider's-web side lines crisscrossed and intersected each other at every important repeater point of the Western Union system, and extended to the haunts of the fans in many a village whose total population is less than a thousand souls, mostly rooters.

Black Dominoes, and Peter Pans vied with Daisies, Buttercups, Sunflowers and Witches for honors. His Satanic Majesty in glaring scarlet, was, also, very much in evidence.

Automobiles, loaded with gaily caparisoned Knights and Ladies of the Revel, dashed here and there with their tooting, shrieking, sirens working overtime. Torpedoes cracked on the car tracks and the crowd banged away at noise making instruments of many shapes and sizes. An impromptu circus parade led by a blatting bazoo band, halted traffic while it added its quota to the merriment. One husky youth in gay attire propelled another just as husky down the street in a baby carriage to the amusement of the onlookers. In spite of the drizzling rain which threatened every minute to become a downpour Youth and Beauty would not be denied the sacred privilege of celebrating Hallowen in the characteristic manner of the ages.

In Armory Hall, where the boys of the Alexandria Machine Gun Co. are holding a fiesta and carnival, a large crowd gathered to trip the light fantastic to the strains of the latest jazz, and risk their dimes at the various wheels of fortune in an effort to win the many attractive prizes displayed.

Among the masked dancers were many pleasing maidens in stunning costumes. Miss Annie L. Moore, Miss Virginia Allen, Miss Margaret Saunders, Miss Thelma Mumford, Miss Mary Schoeni, Miss Margaret Moore and Miss Madeline Morriss were especially well made up, each in a representative creation of original design. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Francis, the proud parents of little Jean Francis, who won the five dollar gold piece offered as first prize in the Baby Show on Saturday night, created a lot of merriment with their unique Halloween costumes.

At Westminster Hall, a masquerade social ran full swing with a large attendance. Lots of attractive costumes and plenty of good things to eat featured the entertainment.

Many motor parties ran over to Washington for the evening while others attended private parties in all parts of the city. According to the young folks, everybody enjoyed themselves to the limit.

Gives Cause Relating To Typhoid Fever

in carrying the disease from one person to another. Then in the early stages of the disease when the patient is not yet down in bed, he comes into close contact with others and can infect them.

As a matter of fact, a case of typhoid should be strictly quarantined, just the same as smallpox, diphtheria or scarlet fever, for it is just as communicable and equally dangerous, in fact more so. But unfortunately typhoid has not as yet been placed under the quarantine laws. So the best we can do is to warn people of the dangerous nature of the disease, and how easily it can be communicated from one to another.

And then again—and this is the most serious fact of all—a person who has recovered from typhoid, will remain a carrier of the germs for an unknown period. Some for only a week, while others are carriers for months and even years. The living germs are voided by the urine or stools or both. From 4 to 5 per cent of all typhoid patients remain carriers for quite a long period. There is at least one carrier to every 1,000 of population. This applies to the country at large.

It is practically impossible to determine just how any given case became infected. When there is an epidemic, it is not hard to trace the source of infection.

If everything you eat or drink was free from infection at its source, and reached you without being touched by other hands, you would be safe from food and drink infection.

Then if you locked yourself up in your house so no person could enter, and kept out every single fly you would be safe fromhuman contact and fly infection. But these things are practically impossible, hence your only real safety is in the anti-typhoid inoculation.

That is a sure protection for two years.

Without it you are liable to typhoid infection, no matter where you live, or where you go, in this or any other country.

Shocking Accident

On Wednesday morning last, a man was found dead between this place and Chickques near the quarry. His death was occasioned by a rolling stone from a quarry down the side of a hill. The stone struck his head and bruised and mangled it in a most awful manner. He was seen passing Mr. Reimers on Tuesday evening near sunset, at which time it was supposed the unfortunate accident occured. An inquest was held over his body on Wednesday which was interred in the burying ground of this place on the evening of said day. He was dressed in a velvet round-about, and cord pantiloons, and appeared to have been a plasterer or tender of Masons.

DEMOCRATIC ACTIVITY

Richmond, Va., Oct. 31.—Congressman H. D. Flood, just out of the Tenth District, reached Richmond recently, enthused over political conditions all over Virginia. Last Saturday he addressed a tremendous crowd at Appomattox; Senator S. L. Ferguson, John R. Horsely and Congressman P. H. Drewry, also speaking. The meeting, which was a record one, was characterized by great enthusiasm.

Leaving Appomattox Congressman Flood and Senator Ferguson went to Fluvanna, where they both spoke. On Monday they addressed a tremendous crowd at Palmyra, it being court day. Three Republican speakers, headed by Colonel Henry W. Anderson, had been billed to put in their appearance, the other two G. O. P. orators being Lou Summers and S. H. Hoge. None of the three showed up.

When it was learned that Congressman Flood was present a move ment was put on foot to have him engage Coloneu Anderson in joint discussion. To this Mr. Flood readily agreed. Time wore on, however, and as none of the Republican speakers put in an apperance, Mr. Flood delivered a ringing address, which was cheered to the echo. He was followed by Senator Furguson, whose remarks were also well received. Geo. A. Bowles, candidate to succeed himself in the house of delegates from Goochland, was the last speaker.

Mr. Flood was presented at Palmyra by Colonel Perkins, principal of Fork Union Military Academy, who was a strong Tucker leader. Col. Perkins said that this was a time for every faction of the party to stand together. "Our flag is now under fire of the enemy," said Colonel Perkins. "It is a time for all Democrats to rally to the colors." Pembroke Pettit, a former state senator and a supporter of Mr. Tucker, presented Mr. Bowles, who, in turn, introduced Senator Ferguson.

Congressman Flood spoke Monday night at Scottsville. He will probably remain in Richmond, at Democratic Campaign Headquarters, for several days.

Commenting on the political situation throughout Virginia Mr. Flood said that reports reaching him indicate a great revival in party enthusiasm. Personal observation led him to believe that the Democratic majority at the polls next month would be impressive. He thinks the G. O. P. Leaders already apprehend disaster, but does not believe they are as yet prepared for the really crushing defeat which is in store for them.

Matters could not look better throughout the state, said he. He urges all Democratic voters to cast their ballots on November 8th.

THIS YOUNG MOTHER

Tells Childless Women What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Her

Millston, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are very fond of children and for a considerable time after we married I feared I would not have any owing to my weak condition. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I have a nice strong healthy baby girl. I can honestly say that I did not suffer much more when my baby was born than I used to suffer with my periods before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound years ago. I give all the credit to your medicine and shall always recommend it very highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSSEN, Millston, Wisconsin.

How can women who are weak and sickly expect or hope to become mothers of healthy children? Their first duty is to themselves. They should overcome the derangement or debility that is dragging them down, and strengthen the entire system, as did Mrs. Janssen, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and then they will be in a position to give their children the blessing of a good constitution.

TEN o'clock was the favored dinner hour in medieval times. Dinner, in fact, comes to us from the early French words meaning, "the tenth hour." Whenever you are in Washington, remember it is always ten o'clock here. At least, every time of day is dining time—and no matter where the clock's hands point, here is food of seasonable excellence, ready at your command at prices you can commend.

Your state of health largely depends upon the food you eat

No one who is physically ailing in any way can afford to take chances with the food he eats. For upon the selection of your food, and upon its perfect digestion and assimilation largely depends your state of health.

The most important thing in connection with the digestibility of any cereal food is the way it is prepared—and the length of time it is cooked or baked.

Grape-Nuts, the rich cereal food made from whole wheat flour and malted barley, is probably baked longer than any other cereal food.

A large part of the starch of the wheat and barley is changed into dextrin and grape-sugar in preparing Grape-Nuts. This is one reason why Grape-Nuts is so easily digested by even the most delicate people.

Grape-Nuts is wheat and barley so processed as to make it delicious and appetizing; even young children thrive on it and grow strong and rosy.

Go to your grocer today and get a package of Grape-Nuts. Eat it as a cereal with milk or cream, or make it into a delicious pudding. It will be enjoyed and relished by every member of the family.

During the Revolutionary period Carlyle House was the scene of many other important conferences and within its portals the question of the boundary line between Maryland and Virginia was settled. Today it stands enclosed by tall buildings, a silent monument to the faith of John Carlyle in the greatness of the country which he called his home for it took courage to erect and maintain a pretentious place of that character in the days when "The word was young," when no man knew when he went to bed at night whether he would have his hair when the sun rose in the east the following morning.

The masquerade party given by the students of Pohick School in celebration of the Halloween season was a brilliant success according to a certain High School student who attended the festivites last Saturday night "Every boy who bought a pie got to eat it with the girl who made it," said the A. H. S. courtier, "and I am telling you that SHE was some girl. Pretty as a picture and as winning as a movie star—The pie? Oh, my mind wasn't on the pie—I suppose it was a good one—SHE made it."

Having met some of the facinating damsels from the vicinity of Pohick Creek we realize exactly how he felt for once upon a time we would have attended that festival if we would have been force that the entertainment netted the school sufficient funds to equip the library with everything it required, and left enough to outfit the football team with the most approved trimmings. The spirit displayed by the students of the rural school in going after the things they need for its betterment is indeed commendable.

NEXT DOSE CALOMEL MAY SALIVATE YOU

It is Mercury, Quicksilver, Shocks Liver and Attacks Your Bones

Calomel salivation is horrible. It swells the tongue, loosens the teeth and starts rheumatism. There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for colomel. It is a pleasent vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Calomel is a dangerous drug, besides it may make you feel sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than treacherous calomel your money is waiting for you.

Pain In Muscles And Joints Caused By Rheumatism

To Get Genuine Relief You Must Clear Your Blood of Waste Products.

If we could keep our human bodies clean of the poisons which accumulate in them daily, and give them the full benefit of proper diet, we should live far beyond the average span of human life.

But alas! We realize only too often that we have an excess of waste products in our system. This poisonous waste matter not only causes a lowered vitality and many forms of skin disorders, but it also causes rheumatism—a disease that has no equal for pain. Genuine relief from the agonies of rheumatism can be had only by correcting the basic trouble—waste products.

Thousands and thousands of men and women during the past 50 years have cleared their blood of waste products with S. S. S. It is the ideal remedy for rheumatism, because it removes the poisonous waste matter which is causing the trouble. There are no bad after effects and the result is wonderful. Begin taking S. S. S. today and write for 56 page illustrated booklet, "Facts About the Blood"—free.

Personal medical advice, without charge, may also be had by sending a complete description of your case. Address Chief Medical Director, Swift Specific Co., 733 S. S. S. Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga. All good drug stores sell S. S. S.

A garage on North Royal Street displays a startling sign. We rubbed our eyes and looked twice. Perhaps John D. had turned philanthropist over night. Or again it might be that some bright mind had discovered a real substitute for gasoline. A miracle must have happned for the sign in glaring yellow, read: GAS 2c. Close inspection, however, revealed the fact that one of the numerals had been painted over—which indicates that fuel for your benzine buggy has gone either up or down an added cent. John D. is still doing business on a business basis.

Motor Troubles that Balanced Gasoline Minimizes

SOME annoyances of motor operation are overheating, missing in the cylinders, the need for frequent carburetor adjustments, quick and heavy accumulations of carbon in the combustion chamber, on valve seats and spark plugs, vile smelling exhaust fumes and the dilution and contamination of the lubricating oil.

These are frequently traceable to deficiencies in the gasoline—to lack of uniformity in composition—to sluggish gasoline that fails to vaporize properly or burn up completely.

In volatility and quick, complete, powerful combustion, "Standard" Motor Gasoline equals or excels every other motor gasoline. It is an improved, balanced gasoline of standardized uniformity that vaporizes readily at all temperatures. It enables motors to start quickly and develop maximum power for hard hills on a lean, clean-burning, economical mixture. With "Standard" Motor Gasoline it is not necessary to use a rich, wasteful mixture even in cold weather.

"Standard" Motor Gasoline costs no more by the gallon—considerably less by the mile. You can get it wherever you go. Drive in where you see the familiar "S.O." sign. Test a tankful.

ward the bottom. The lower edge is finished with a braided design simulating banding, while the same mode of trimming is employed over the shoulders, with touches of braid upon the plainly cut and slightly flaring sleeves. A snug fur collar kisses the chin, and the buttons are quite large and round.

"Decidedly chic," is probably how the saleslady would describe the attractive qualities of a gown seen recently in the city. And for girls who love fussy things, I would agree with her. This was a gown following the late lines with a long-waisted blouse, the skirt being formed by two or three rows of shirring. The material itself was the adornment, being fashioned of flashing gold and black brocade. It had a jet girdle, and the edges of the open sleeves as well as the skirt hem were banded with black fox fur. The price tag fluttering from this creation would drive a husband to drinking home-brewed moonshine.
